To Members of Staff of St Rafael's Hospital in Krakow, Poland

Dear All

I would like to thank very much all the medical, technical, and support staff at the hospital who have assisted me during my stay.

To me, the standards achieved here appear to be exemplary and a credit to all those involved.

I am convinced that I had received a better quality of service and attention than I might ever have achieved in the United Kingdom.

Of course, I do not wish to have to return to your hospital for any reason but if I am in need of hospitalisation in the future I would have no hesitation in deciding to come here.

Additionally, I will be suggesting to any of my friends and acquaintances in the UK that they should certainly consider coming to this hospital for treatment if they are not satisfied with the timing or standards of service they are receiving from a UK hospital.

With sincerest thanks,

Colin Walker
